

for every request => new connection object[time consuming] for every request => no new connection object rather get the connection object from connection pool After using this connection object closing the connection means sending the connection object back to connection pool.